The Meaning of ANMWE

A cry of pain, a cry of desolation,
A denunciation of hatred, a call for revenge,
A wake-up call, a call of hope.

The Mother, the powerful womb of the human experience, beseeches mankind to respect life.
She who gives birth in pain knows the price of life.
She who gives life hates the one who robs it.
She who bears love carries in her all of the world's ability for change, beauty, justice and peace.

Program Notes

The word "Anmwe" is a very powerful exclamation in the Creole language. It is hard to find an exact word in English to translate it effectively. To cry "Anmwe" is to convey pain, emotional torment and heartache on the deepest level. The piece was inspired by a gut-wrenching documentary which included a mother's tear-jerking reaction to the sudden loss of her three sons, blatantly killed during the ongoing conflict between the university students of Port-au-Prince and the government of Haiti at the time [2005]. The mother, having lost her sanity, spoke of her grief, mentioning how she wished they had also killed her so that she would not have to endure that excruciating pain. The text of Anmwe is written in the point of view of a mother who has lost everything.
